Wants the Residence.

E. N. Hundley has instituted suit in the circuit court to require George R. Burks to execute a deed to the residence property on East Main street which plaintiff purchased from the defendant on March 20, 1909.

At the time of the sale (March 20) the defendant and his wife entered into a written agreement by the terms of which they were to execute, on March 30, 1909, a deed to the property in consideration of $11,000, five thousand of which was to be paid in cash. On March 30 the plaintiff asked for the deed. In accordance with the written contract, at the time tending the defendant $5000 in cash and the balance in lien notes. The defendant refused the money and declined to execute the deed and, according to the petition, still refuses to comply with the contract which was written by the defendant and signed by himself and wife. The contract was also signed by plaintiff and his wife. The plaintiff seeks to have the defendant comply with the contract by executing a deed to the property—Lebanon Enterprise.

Swept Over Niagara.

This terrible calamity often happens because a careless boatman ignores the river's warning—growing ripples and faster current. Nature's warnings are kind. That dull pain in the back warns you that the kidneys need attention if you would escape fatal m. m. kidney disease or Bright's disease. Take Electric Bitters at once and see how quickly they and all your best feelings return. "After long suffering from weak kidneys and lame back one $1.00 bottle wholly cured me," writes J. R. A Temporary Quarantine.

For the first time in the history of Marion county a temporary quarantine against glanders was established Wednesday on the farm of Mr. Harland Christie, in the neighborhood of Penick.

For sometime past a portion of Mr. Christie's horses and mules have been suffering with a serious malady which two veterinarians, one from Springfield and one from Perryville, treated at different times, but the stock was not affected with glanders. This condition, being rather of a private nature, excited no alarm until Monday, when a member of the county Board of Health directed that a mule owned by Orin Veatch be killed, giving as his reason that the animal had glanders. A few weeks previous to this another mule belonging to Mr. Veatch had died of a disease, the symptoms of which were very similar to the symptoms of the mule which this member of the County Board of Health directed killed. These mules had been purchased of Mr. Harland Christie. This circumstance along with other reports that came to the Board of Health excited alarm and caused a rigid investigation of the condition of Mr. Christie's suffering stock to be made.

On Wednesday, Dr. Eisena, the State Veterinarian under the State Board of Health, came to this city, and accompanied by Drs. Robert and McChord, members of the County Board of Health, drove to Mr. Christie's farm and examined the sick stock. Referring to Lebanon, he went before the Fiscal court, then in session and stated that he found one mule among Mr. Christie's stock badly afflicted with glanders and several other head with strong symptoms of the same disease. Dr. Eisena directed a temporary quarantine of Mr. Christie's stock and explain the usual course in matters of the kind. County Attorney Spalding read the law applicable to the case, which directs that every animal suffering with glanders be killed and its remains disposed of in such a manner to prevent further spread of the disease, and that all stock with doubtful symptoms, or that might possibly have come in contact with the diseased, be isolated and quarantined until they had undergone the test that proved beyond doubt they were not affected with this terrible disease. The test is known as the maling treatment which is similar to vaccination to prevent smallpox among the human family. This treatment does not prevent the disease; it simply develops unmistakable symptoms if the horse has the malady.

Mr. Christie has about sixty head of horses, mules, jacks and jennets, on his farm, which will be required to undergo this maling treatment. Dr. Eisena has kindly volunteered to do his utmost to have the National Agricultural Department at Washington send a Federal veterinarian here to give the maling treatment to Mr. Christie's stock and to supervise the quarantine until all symptoms of the disease have disappeared.

Mr. Christie promptly killed the diseased mule Wednesday evening and will co-operate in every way with the authorities to effect the rapid stamping out of the disease.

Glanders, according to Webster, is a highly contagious and very destructive disease of horses, mules, etc., characterized by a constant discharge of sticky matter from the nose, and an enlargement and induration of the glands beneath and within the lower jaw. It may be transmitted to dogs, goats, sheep and to human beings. The disease is known as one of the most destructive, and the most rigid laws have been enacted concerning it. Any opposition to the proper authorities would invite State and National quarantine which would seriously effect and cripple sales of all kinds of stock subject to the disease. Owners of such diseased stock are also liable to heavy fines if they should refuse to take proper steps to stamp out the disease.

BANKER GETS FIVE YEARS.

Former President of Owensboro Bank Given Term in Prison.

Hawesville, Ky., April 8.—After thirty minutes' deliberation, this morning the jury in the Owensboro bank case found the defendant, James H. Parrish, guilty as charged in the indictment and fixed his punishment at five years' confinement in the penitentiary.

The verdict was returned almost on the anniversary of the failure of the Owensboro Savings Bank and Trust Company.

This was the second trial of the case, the former trial resulting in a hung jury.

Parrish was one of the leading citizens of Owensboro, a prominent churchman and interested in many of the business enterprises in his city.

The failure of the bank startled the citizens of the Davies county capital, though those who were conversant with banking affairs were of the opinion that the institution was in a shaky condition.

The indictment on which Parrish was tried charged him with receiving deposits after he knew the bank was insolvent. He protested against being tried in Owensboro by Judge Birkhead and secured a change of venue to Hancock county. Judge Kelly, of Bardonia, being appointed Special Judge to try the case.

A Baby Show in Springfield.

There would be many contestants, but it was safe to say that the healthiest baby would win the prize. Mothers, don't attempt to give children without White's Cream Vermifuge. Price 25c. Sold by the Red Cross Drug Store.

Crop Report.

Frankfort, Ky.,—The initial crop report for the 1909 season has been issued from the State Department of Agriculture, and covers conditions of the growing crops from county correspondence, arranged in the crop department.

State Commissioner Rankin has a correspondent in every county in Kentucky, and will make the monthly reports of his department as complete as it is possible to make them. The April report explains that the percentage given for corn and tobacco acreage are prospective. The prospect is for the largest tobacco crop in many years for both barley and dark, and an average corn crop will be planted. Wheat is not in as good condition as it was at this time last year, but with favorable weather, it will make a fair yield. Live stock have wintered well, and the prices of all are fairly good, horses and mules being high.

The percentages for fruits are based on the present outlook and the present prospects is for a good peach crop.

The acreage for wheat in the State at large is placed at 97, prospective acreage of corn 99, acreage of oats 79; dark tobacco, prospective acreage, 99 barley prospective acreage, 88; rye prospective acreage, 88; potatoes, prospective acreage, 83; fruit, general condition, 70; the general condition of livestock is placed at 93.

May Music Festival

One of the handsomest pieces of printing, from a purely mechanical standpoint, that have been seen lately is the prospectus of the May Music Festival to be held in Louisville May 6, 7 and 8. The prospectus has just been issued, and is printed on India tinted paper with Egyptian ink. It is illustrated with cuts of the soloists who are to take part, and gives full information concerning the great musical event.

Announcement is made for the first time of the program arrangement of the festival. There will be five concerts, Thursday, Friday and Saturday evening, May 6, 7 and 8, and Friday and Saturday afternoons being the dates for the performances. The opening event is called "Italian Opera Night," when Verdi's "Aida" will be sung. The following afternoon a Symphony Concert will be given, and Verdi's great Symphony in E-flat will be played. That evening is Popular Night, and two big chorals, "The Pied Piper of Hamelin" and "The Death of Minnehaha" will be sung. Saturday afternoon the Children's Concert will be given, and Saturday evening, Farewell Night, will be given up largely to Mme. Olivo Fremsted, the great soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

An exceptionally large edition of the prospectus has been printed, and copies may be had on application to Secretary Andrew Broadbent, Columbia Building, Louisville, Ky.

Eating Up the Grass.

In a month there will be plenty of grass in the pasture fields of the cornbelt for all sorts of stock. As a consequence many farmers are in the market for some sort of stock to eat it. Time out of mind the rush to buy this steers has reached a climax about this time of the year, with the result usually that prices have been forced upward sometimes to a point which precluded profit. There is an old proverb about hatching waste, and many a large lot has been applicable to the situation inherent in the upspringing of grass. Too often the farmer has considered: if the part of wisdom to wait until the very last minute before placing his order for stock or feeders. This has bunched up the demand into a few weeks, and the people with such animals to vend have naturally enough taken advantage of the situation to exact a not inconsiderable toll.

This policy of waiting till grass is about ready for stock to live on has been defended on the ground that if it does cost a little more the added item of expenditure will be counterbalanced by the saving effected by not carrying the stock through a period of hand-feeding. Probably a good case may be made out for this contention from the standpoint of the initial investment; but how about the returns accruing later? Certain it is that when many are clamoring for a share of the available supply someone must put up with the short end. There are few enough good stockers and feeders on the market at all times; but when everybody wants them someone is bound to be disappointed. Then come the stern alternative of "getting something to eat up the grass." Necessity compels the purchase of whatever is on sale at the time, and that is quite generally far from good. Farmers who have pastures would be foolish to let the grass go to waste; but how many of them get maximum returns from their grazing?

Therefore while passing over the item of initial expense incurred by waiting until the last

JURORS WHO SIGN PARDON PETITIONS.

New Rule Compels Giving of Testimony Before Justice of Peace.

Frankfort, Ky., April 7.—Gov. Wilson today issued the following rules to govern the consideration of pardon applications:

In view of the number of applications for pardons in which papers are presented purporting to be signed by men alleged to have been jurors who found the applicant guilty on trial in court, when the jurors were on duty under oath, in which the jurors represented as joining in asking a pardon, and because there is danger in such cases that the jurors are represented as joining in asking a pardon, and because there is danger in such cases that the jurors may not have signed the papers presented ready made for the juror to sign or not to sign, or that when they do sign, when no longer under the restraint of being on duty under oath, they may be subjected to personal influences, appeals for mercy and other suggestions not made under the same circumstances and rules of evidence and procedure and protections against the suggestions, statements and appeals which govern in the trial, and are often led to sign statements prepared by interested parties, and not their own reasons, and because considering such alleged signatures to such petitions exposes the Governor to mistakes of fact, law and justice. It is adopted as a rule of the Governor's office, that no petition or alleged petition or any alleged signature of any juror to any petition or request for pardon, shall be considered on any such application or request, unless each of the following rules will be complied with:

First—There shall accompany said alleged recommendation of jurors for a pardon, a duly certified copy of the order of the court showing the names of the jurors elected and impaneled to try the case and a copy of the verdict.

Second—The statement and request of each juror must be shown by an examination under oath before some Judge or Justice of the Peace of each juror separately and apart from all other persons, except the officer testifying that he served on the jury and agreed to the verdict, copy of which is shown or read to him by such officer, and stating in the juror's own words as to those of a petition prepared for him to sign, why he asks the Governor to change the result of the sworn verdict.

Witness the hand of the Governor this 5th day of April, 1909.

Made a Hit
The Danger Signal presented at the Opera House Monday night by local talent under the supervision of the ladies of the Catholic church, was a success in every way. The fact was again demonstrated that there is as good talent in Springfield as can be found anywhere. The whole entertainment was excellent, and the performance was superior to that of many professional troupes which have played here. The Danger Signal abounds in wit, humor and pathos and the execution of it was such as to hold the attention of the large audience during the whole performance.

The musical program under the direction of Miss Kate Cain was very interesting throughout.
The selections were well chosen and the rendition of them splendid. The specialties between the acts received much applause.
"You are just the one for me!"
sung by little Miss Emma Spalding and Master Donald Campbell, and "Twinkle, twinkle little star" sung by Miss Katharine Simms were well rendered. "A Gypsy Maiden I" was sung by Miss Mary Haydon who in her usual good voice, delighted her audience as she always does.
"What makes the World go

Mary Haydon and Isa Collins and Messrs. A. R. Shultz, Albert

HINTS FOR FARMERS

Pigs on Pasture.
The spring litters should be provided with a good clover pasture and in addition be given a moderate grain ration, enough to maintain a steady, rapid growth, writes an Ohio farmer in the National Stockman. Clover alone is just about a maintenance ration, and little if any growth can be secured on grass ration alone. The grass ration is all right as far as it goes, but the pig cannot consume and digest enough to make any considerable growth owing to its small stomach, which is the pig is the smallest of any domestic animal of the weight.

A given amount of grain will make double the pork with clover that it will in winter or dry lot feeding, and as the price of grain has been high for some time and is likely to continue so the successful grower of hogs in the future is the one who summer feeds on a clover pasture.

Dairy Feeding Experiment.
The Wisconsin experiment station is trying out the plan of feeding dairy cows as many pounds of grain daily per cow as the produces pounds of butter during the week, or seven times as much grain as the amount of fat produced daily. The cows receive as much hay and silage as they will eat up clean, usually requiring twenty-five to forty-three pounds of silage and three or four pounds of dry hay daily.
The results of the experiment will prove interesting. It is generally conceded that it is impossible to determine upon any hard and fast rule in feeding cows, for that matter, any other animal. The successful feeder is he who can vary his feed according to the animal's requirement and ability to return a profit on the feed consumed.

Fertilizer For Potatoes.
The old tradition that potatoes are peculiarly hungry for potash cannot be stamped out. But it isn't true. This is a fact many times demonstrated.
Much potato land is deficient most of all in phosphoric acid. That is the first need. In the fertilizer phosphoric acid should run high. Some land, well manured or clovered, needs only phosphorus. Where a complete fertilizer gets, try one high in this element.
Do not use too much nitrogen. It makes the vines, but does not put the big tubers in the hill. If manure has been used, try 400 or 500 pounds of acid phosphate or steamed bone per acre and eighty pounds sulphate of potash. At any rate, try some carrier of phosphoric acid. Use it freely.—National Stockman.

Barley and Oats Mixed.
Barley and oats grown as a mixed crop at the Ontario experiment station gave in 1907 the highest yield of grain, 1,970 pounds per acre, where four bushels of each were used per acre. The mixture of Manitoba barley and Danbury oats has been found to ripen well together and to produce a large yield of grain. The results with crop mixtures of twelve and eight kinds of grain in combinations made up of uniform weights of seed or of quantities in the same proportion as when the crops are grown separately showed the superiority of Manitoba six rowed barley when used in this way. In the average of six years' work the results of twenty-four tests this variety represented 17.6 per cent in the mixture.

The Cow and Silage.
Why should good milk result from sour smelling silage and poor milk from silage? If a very thin slice of onion, turnip or cabbage is examined under a high power magnifying glass the tissue will be seen filled with minute drops of a sulphur oil which imparts the peculiar odor and flavor.
The system of a cow tries to burn up and get rid of all that would injure the milk, but these sulphur oils are among the most difficult to eliminate from the system, and unless fed in small quantities will produce a bad effect on the milk. On the other hand, the odor and taste of silage are connected with the acids of fermentation, which are easily destroyed by the cow.
—Denver Field and Farm.

Poultry Notes.
Protect your fowls from the different pests that prey on your poultry the same as your garden.

Few fowls can do well when roosting in trees under all conditions.

The importance of grit should be recognized by every one having fowls.
A stumbling block over which many fowls are tripping is in understanding to breed too many different varieties.

There are three important factors in getting eggs—good hens, proper roostings and suitable feed.

Rebuke.
A child, dark, autumn morning. A breakfast table with an overworked trifle of clamorous children. A woeful mother and an irritable father uttering something about "no decent show room." A small child, purple about the eyes from the plate and says, "Didn't one of us better die?"—London Academy.
